DEVELOPING WORK-READY ALLIED HEALTH ASSISTANTS

Following challenges finding work-ready Allied Health assistants, Cabrini Health has partnered up with Holmesglen to deliver the Certificate IV in Allied Health Assistance. A working party of Cabrini staff helped Holmesglen develop the course content and staff from the physiotherapy, occupational and speech pathology areas are teaching subjects at Holmesglen over the one year course.

Cabrini Allied Assistant, Hannah Farelly has been part of the teaching team and she said it has been a valuable experience, “We have been able to tailor the training to the skills needed by Cabrini and other health care organisations”.

The fact that students are being taught by a team that are currently working in the healthcare sector means they can begin networking and building contacts, whilst studying. Students are required to undertake a four week placement as part of the course and five a semester get to work at Cabrini Health.

Four Holmesglen graduates have already been employed by Cabrini Health since the partnership started, including Sarla Jeet who now works as a Physiotherapy Assistant.
